FEBRUARY 2025 MONTHLY FACTSHEET

F EUR: -2.4% YTD: -2.9% I EUR: -2.4% YTD: -2.9% SI EUR: -2.4% YTD: -2.9%

Strategy Description

- The Trium ESG Emissions Improvers Fund has twin aims – to make an improvement on the environment by helping to combat global warming, while, at the same time, seeking to generate absolute returns, with a low correlation to traditional asset classes and other ESG products.
- The Portfolio Manager identifies companies that have the potential to significantly reduce their environmental footprint relative to their peers and the broader market. He sets out to constructively engage with these companies to encourage them to reduce their emissions. Market and other factor risks are mitigated with offsetting short positions, which will include alpha short positions.

Portfolio manager's commentary

- The Fund was down -2.4% in February to bring year-to-date performance to -2.9%. Amid the significant market volatility throughout the month, our three largest detractors included an electric cable supplier, equipment rental company and insulation manufacturing company. Our three largest contributors were a building materials company, utility company and steel manufacturing company.
- The electric cable supplier fell in February through a combination of deteriorating sentiment toward electrification and a muted 2025 outlook statement. Despite changes in sentiment toward electricity demand growth, our structural view remains that baseload demand will growth ~2% annually in both Europe and the USA going forward. We believe the company's growth and margin drivers remain intact.
- The equipment rental company fell this month due to market reaction to its purchase of a close competitor. This deal further consolidates the industry, and we estimate will result in ~4% accretion to the company's earnings in 2026. The market focused more on the company's increased financial leverage and use of equity to fund the transaction. We believe the well-consolidated and rational equipment market can generate strong cash returns due to rising capital investments in the USA, and the company's valuation is attractive as it deleverages in 2026.
- The insulation manufacturer fell in February, despite reporting strong Q4 2024 earnings, amid concerns about a weakening American housing market. The company retains a strong USA market share and has previously managed downturns through capacity adjustments. We believe its weaker Q1 outlook is due to a cyclical market downturn while the USA continues to experience national housing shortages.
- The building materials company rallied 7% on solid Q4 2024 results and the market rewarded its continuing improvements in return on capital and margin. After two years of declining construction activity, we believe it will increase in 2025 amid falling input costs.
- The utility company rallied 8% on an encouraging Q4 2024 update that emphasised the long-term need for higher equity returns and more investment in the electricity grid. The company also benefitted from optimism over possible pro-growth policies of a new government.
- The steel company rallied 26% after good results and a recovery in steel margins, partially driven by USA tariffs and the EU's upcoming review of safeguard measures on steel. Current margins will allow the company to invest in building world-class green steel facilities while still paying shareholder dividends.
