

TRIUM EPYNT MACRO FUND

JULY 2025 MONTHLY NEWSLETTER

F USD: +0.6% YTD: +5.0%

Strategy Description

- ▶ The Trium Epynt Macro Fund pursues a traditional thematic approach to investing, with a focus on identifying and monetising major macroeconomic and geopolitical trends.
- ▶ The Portfolio Managers have the flexibility to invest across fixed income, foreign exchange, commodities and equities, with a global remit encompassing both developed and liquid emerging markets.
- ▶ The Fund aims to achieve a 6-10% annualised return, independent of market environment, with a volatility of 6-10%.

Portfolio Manager's Commentary

- ▶ Global stock markets continued to tick higher in July, despite an increasingly complex tangle of tariffs and trade deals as the end of Trump's original 90-day reprieve came and went. The Fund returned +0.6%, with gains spread across fixed income, commodities and equities.
- ▶ Short-term Hong Kong Dollar (HKD) rates trading made the biggest contribution to P&L after the Fund added back to its position. To recap: this is a more technical trade that has periodically enabled us to exploit the mechanics of the peg system. Forward rates are currently implying that demand for HKD will subside, whereas we foresee a continued bid from investors seeking to participate in local IPOs, amid a general nervousness about the USD.
- ▶ Having scaled-up our options position in June, Chinese equities made a useful contribution as stocks moved higher across the board.
- ▶ In commodities, gains came from precious metals, and carbon emissions; where the Fund is long in both California (as a distressed play) and the EU (on short-term supply and demand dynamics). There were some offsetting losses in uranium, although the outlook is favourable after the Big Beautiful Bill was signed into law. While the legislation phases out tax credits for wind and solar, it retains key incentives to boost nuclear capacity to meet the AI-driven surge in electricity demand.
- ▶ The main drag on performance came from wagers on lower US rates and a weaker USD. The Fed held as expected, but yields moved higher as the market priced out a full 25bp cut amid signs that tariffs might be starting to bite. By month end just one cut priced was for the remainder of 2025. This was much to the frustration of Trump who stepped up his attacks on Chair Powell; touting the idea that the "ostentatious" marble refit at the Fed might provide grounds for dismissal. Having been positioned for larger cuts in 2025, the Fund gave back some P&L. We continue to look for opportunities to position for lower rates.
- ▶ The Fund incurred losses on its Brazilian Real long as the DXY rallied +3%. The position was not helped by threats of 50% tariffs on Brazilian goods in a move indicative of the administration's tactic of deploying tariffs as a means of pursuing broader political objectives; in this case an effort to stop the "witch-hunt" against former president Bolsonaro (FKA "Trump of the tropics"). The US runs a surplus with Brazil and there will be exclusions to much of the country's limited exports to the US. We added to our options position.
- ▶ We gave back P&L on our S&P short. For the time being, there has been little sign of any slip up from the dominant US tech giants that have led the immense rally from the April lows, but we continue to hold puts as a portfolio hedge given the uncertain outlook.
- ▶ Elsewhere, Bitcoin surged to new highs above $120k as Congress passed the GENIUS Act to regulate dollar-backed stablecoins. The legislation represents a further step in the institutionalisation of digital assets, driven by a president with significant skin in the game. We do not seek to make the case for any real-world utility, beyond a simple store of value, but wish to remain aligned with efforts to legitimise the asset class.

- Foreign exchange risk investments in the fund may be subject to fluctuations in foreign exchange rates.
- Derivatives & leverage risk derivatives can change in value rapidly and may cause losses to any investment fund
- Credit Risk the fund is exposed to the risk that the issuer of any debt securities invested in fails to meet its obligations.
